

VIRTUAL SESSION PRODUCERS

The best friend you never knew you needed for virtual facilitation. VSP's ensure the participant experience isn't diminished by continuous interruptions, technical issues, and unanswered questions. This allows the facilitator to focus on what they do best, delivering the content.

Adapting to the Virtual Classroom

Transitioning an in-person facilitated learning project to a virtual platform presents a new set of challenges. Maintaining the level of participant engagement needed for learning and retention is atop that list. Virtual Session Producers (VSP's) are the cornerstone of effective instructional partnerships, because they enable both the facilitator and learners to focus on the learning experience, not the learning environment. This directly contributes to highly interactive, faster moving, and engaging virtual events.

Are VSP's Right for my Learning Project?

Virtual Session Producers are the safety net that separates very successful live events from ones that are chaotic, unorganized, and unprofessional. Based on your specific event needs, the role of a VSP can be tailored to meet your expectations, which in turn, ensures a cohesive partnership.

From our experience, clients benefit most from utilizing a VSP when they have:

10+ Participants

Having an extra set of hands for technical troubleshooting and Q&A is essential for large groups.

Interactive Learning

Projects utilizing Polls, Whiteboards, Breakout rooms, and/or Q&A functionality.

New Facilitators

Facilitators new to instructing via virtual platforms can find it overwhelming without a virtual subject matter expert.

Unprepared Participants

If this is a common theme, VSP's can manage participant preparedness and pre/post event communication.
